Montreal

HISTORICALLY, commercially and financially, Montreal is to-day the metropolis of Canada and one of the most magnificent cities on the American continent. Much has been written about the splendor of the site of Montreal and her picturesque surroundings; but to properly appreciate the scenery that frames in the enchanting picture of Canada's great commercial seaport, you require to visit the city (preferably in summer) stand on the brow of Mount Royal and there contemplate the lovely panorama that unfolds itself before you.

At your feet spreads out the city proper—with its wilderness of spires, domes and towering structures, its miles of wide tree-adorned streets, its wonderful harbour, and its numerous outlying towns or suburbs, that form one harmonious whole. Yonder sweeps the majestic St. Lawrence, bearing on its waters the largest vessels that commerce sends across the Atlantic; above, are the famous Lachine rapids, and the eye can detect the thin line of the Lachine Canal, the connecting link between the ocean navigation below and the inland navigation above. Right or left, behind or before, gaze as you will, for miles on miles, to horizon's rim, fields and lovely landscapes spread out in picturesque succession.

But to understand and appreciate the natural attractions of Montreal and its surroundings they must be seen. In antiquity it is only second to Quebec and its historic memories carry the mind back to the days of Canada's infancy.

It is not our purpose to review the story of Canada's foundation and of its early period, yet, so linked with the past is the City of Montreal that we cannot refrain from taking a bird's-eye view of the days of its early development.

"The Past shines clear and pleasant,
There is glory in the Present,
And the Future, like a crescent,
Lights the deepening sky of Time."

Jacques Cartier who discovered Canada in 1535, was the first white man to set foot on the Island of Montreal. When he came to the head of navigation and beheld its passage checked by the wild rapids of Lachine, he landed at the foot of the Royal Mountain that arose in magnificent proportions above the Indian village of Hochelaga. The site of that village has been found to occupy the section of land that now constitutes the heart of Montreal. However, it was not until the middle of the next century that the colony of Ville Marie was established.

In 1642, Paul de Chomedy Sieur de Maisonneuve landed, with his associates, at the spot where now stands the Montreal Custom House. He took possession of the colony in the name of the King. The first act performed was one of religious devotion; Mademoiselle Mance, Madame de La Peltrie and Charlotte Barre decorated an altar whereon the Jesuit priest, Father Vimont, officiated and concluded the ceremony with this prophetic address: "You are a grain of mustard-seed that shall rise and grow till its branches overshadow the earth. You are few, but your work is the work of God. His smile is on you, and your children shall fill the land."

The early years of settlement were marked by Indian warfare and great privations. In 1653, Marguerite Bourgeoys, a saintly religious woman from Troyes in France, opened the first school for the children of the colonists and of the native Indians. Such is the beginning of a work, the fruits of which are to be seen in half a score of academies and the magnificent educational establishments of Ville Marie to-day.

We cannot attempt to trace the story of Montreal, in all its vicissitudes and stages of development, through the long years of two and a half centuries. From the time of de Maisonneuve down to 1720, the struggles with the Indians grew less and less fierce; the missionaries carried on their work with increasing success; the different Associations or Trading Companies that, at various periods, monopolized the fur trade helped to draw prosperity to the rising colony. In the year last mentioned, de Ramezay was Governor of Montreal and he undertook the replacing of the old wooden structures of defence by solid stone walls. One of the finest relics of the far away past that Montreal possesses to-day is the Chateau de Ramezay—which the Antiquarian Society has preserved and converted into a museum of antiquities.

In 1760, Canada passed from the French to the English domination. The first governor of Montreal under the new regime was General Gage. So successful was his administration at that trying period, on his retirement, the citizens presented him with an address of appreciation.

Nothing of very great moment marked the history of Montreal until the outbreak of the American War of Independence. General Montgomery, in his attack on Canada in 1775, made his headquarters in a house still well preserved and occupying a central site on Notre Dame Street. Montgomery failed to induce the Canadians to join the American colonies in the uprising—consequently, in 1777, the American troops were withdrawn from Montreal.

We might say that the last of the military struggles that made the history of Montreal more or less exciting, at different periods, was the war of 1812. The dawning of the nineteenth century beheld the closing of that long, interesting and romantic story that the pens of Canadian historians have woven about the rising commercial metropolis of this country. A new era—one of commercial and industrial progress—was about to commence, slowly, at first, as might naturally be expected, but with ever increasing rapidity, until the giant strides of later years astonished not only Montrealers themselves but challenged the admiration and wonder of the entire commercial world. Montreal is above all a city of exceptional possibilities; from a small town, it has, in one century, advanced to the rank of a city of nearly half a million, and before another quarter of a century rolls past it will touch the million mark.

In 1807, Fulton's steamboat was launched on the Hudson; two years later, John Molson, who had established a brewery in Montreal (it still exists and flourishes) built a steamboat on the St. Lawrence. This vessel made its maiden trip to Quebec on the 4th November, 1809. It took sixty-six hours to reach the ancient capital. Thus commenced, exactly one hundred years ago, the steam navigation of the St. Lawrence. Need we point, in contrast, to that mighty water highway as we see it to-day, with its possession of ocean steamers of the largest tonnage and from all ends of the earth? In 1817, the Bank of Montreal was established with a capital of $350,000; in a rented house on St. Paul Street, the work commenced—a work that has since developed into the operations of one of the world's greatest banking institutions. In 1831, Montreal received its charter as a city and Mr. Jacques Viger was elected first mayor.

We have thus hurriedly glanced at the main features in the history of earlier days and in the history of Montreal's commercial rise. It would be absolutely impossible for us to trace the advance of each industry and the general progress of the city. The few facts that we have mentioned, if set up beside the results as we behold them to-day, should suffice to give an idea of all that transpired during the intervening years. Volumes would be required to contain the details.

Leaving aside, for the moment, the splendid churches, the grand educational establishments, the museums, art galleries, and palace-like residences of the leading citizens, we will take a running glance at a few of the institutions that have developed from the humble beginnings just indicated and that have given the impetus to Montreal that has brought it to the financial, commercial and industrial position it now occupies.

The day will come—and it may not be very far distant—when the entire Island of Montreal will be a city of humming industry. The island is thirty-two miles in length—and apart from the city proper, it is studded with flourishing towns and villages. The greatest width of the Island is about ten miles. As a centre of distribution, Montreal holds a unique and enviable position. A great focus for all the railway systems of the Dominion, it is also the head of ocean navigation. Its population has more than doubled in the past twenty-five years. It has been blessed with enterprising, honest, capable and patriotic merchant princes whose every energy has been bent in the direction of progress and prosperity.

In 1822, the Committee of Trade was organized. This was the parent, so to speak, of the Board of Trade as we have that institution to-day. In 1840, under the chairmanship of Hon. Peter McGill, the Board was actually established, and during the long period that has since elapsed, Montreal's foremost citizens have appreciated as one of the great honors at the bestowal of the foremost men of this city, the presidency of the Montreal Board of Trade. The Montreal Board of Trade is the largest and most representative body of its kind in Canada. It has been a determining factor in moulding legislation, affecting reforms and improvements, and the wonderful progress of this city is, in a large measure, due to the work of the Montreal Board of Trade. The welfare of the city, and we might well add the welfare of Canada, has ever been the chief thought and consideration of this body.

We have already made mention of the Bank of Montreal as one of the leading factors in the financial development of Canada in general and of the city in particular. The Bank of Montreal ranks with the bank of England amongst the great institutions of the world to-day; with it for a guiding light, the many other Banking institutions of the city have established a general sentiment of security in the entire community. It is also to this stability of our Banks and the proven superiority of our Banking system that our trade has gone forward with leaps and bounds and that no shock, however severely felt in other countries, has ever been able to shake the columns of our Commercial endurance.

The Montreal Stock Exchange, like her Board of Trade, has grown to be a great factor in controlling the financial resources of the Dominion.

Montreal is rapidly, very rapidly, becoming a veritable hive of industry. Especially in the suburban districts, do we find the tall chimneys rising up in rapid succession, and around the base of each one a real settlement of employees is being established, and each of these becomes a municipality, a parish, finally a ward of the city. To the foresight and perseverance of the great princes and captains of trade and manufacture is this expansion due.

The new wharves, quays and piers, the large elevators, the steel-frame sheds and depots along the water-front are only surpassed by the wonderful continuation of the docks. The great railway systems that centre in Montreal have work-shops and car-building, as well as engine-building, establishments that are so many little worlds in themselves.

As stated, Montreal has long enjoyed the reputation of being the great distributing centre, but in one respect it is noted as being the chief dairy distributing centre of Canada. The animated scene on the wharves, of the loading of ocean vessels with Canadian dairy produce for European markets, tells of the importance of this great industry and its value to the agriculturist and trader as a financial asset.

Table showing the receipts at and shipments from Montreal of butter and cheese during the past five years. Receipts of butter are considered to be approximately correct, but, for some reason, the figures supplied the Board for cheese show about 173,500 boxes less than the actual receipts without taking into account the amount of cheese in store in Montreal on December 31st, 1907:

BUTTER.	1907. pkgs.	1906. pkgs.	1905. pkgs.	1904. pkgs.	1903. pkgs.
Receipts	405,554	630,203	786,046	707,237	546,710
Shipments	113,657	395,028	574,775	556,850	378,265
CHEESE.	boxes.	boxes.	boxes.	boxes.	boxes.
Receipts	2,063,986	2,361,770	2,280,064	2,271,090	2,500,976
Shipments	2,237,478	2,463,821	2,422,173	2,506,488	2,635,772

In his concluding remarks in the last annual report the President of the Montreal Merchants' Association, referring to this valuable industry said:

"In conclusion, permit me to again remind you that, during the past twenty-five years, our trade has been the means of bringing into Canada more than five hundred million dollars of gold, or its equivalent, through the sale of sterling exchange."

The entire face of Montreal is being yearly, we might almost say daily, changed. Sky-scrappers replace solid but older buildings; where lots were vacant, fine buildings arise; where pastures extended, streets are filling up the space; the main arteries are growing more numerous and are occupying what long had been quiet residential districts.

Here are a few striking illustrations of the city's growth. Take the telephone statistics:—

15,973 subscribers have been added during the year, the total number of sets of instruments now earning rental being 111,118. The Company now owns and operates 582 Exchanges and 1,254 Agencies.

6,348 miles of wire have been added to the Long Distance System in 1907. The Long Distance Lines now owned and operated by the Company comprise 49,748 miles of wire on 9,540 miles of poles.

The numerous factories, refineries, mills, &c., testify to Montreal's command of raw materials from home and abroad.

The volume of business transacted in Montreal is shown by the receipts of its post offices, the erection of sub-stations in various sections of the city to meet the necessities of trade and the convenience of citizens.

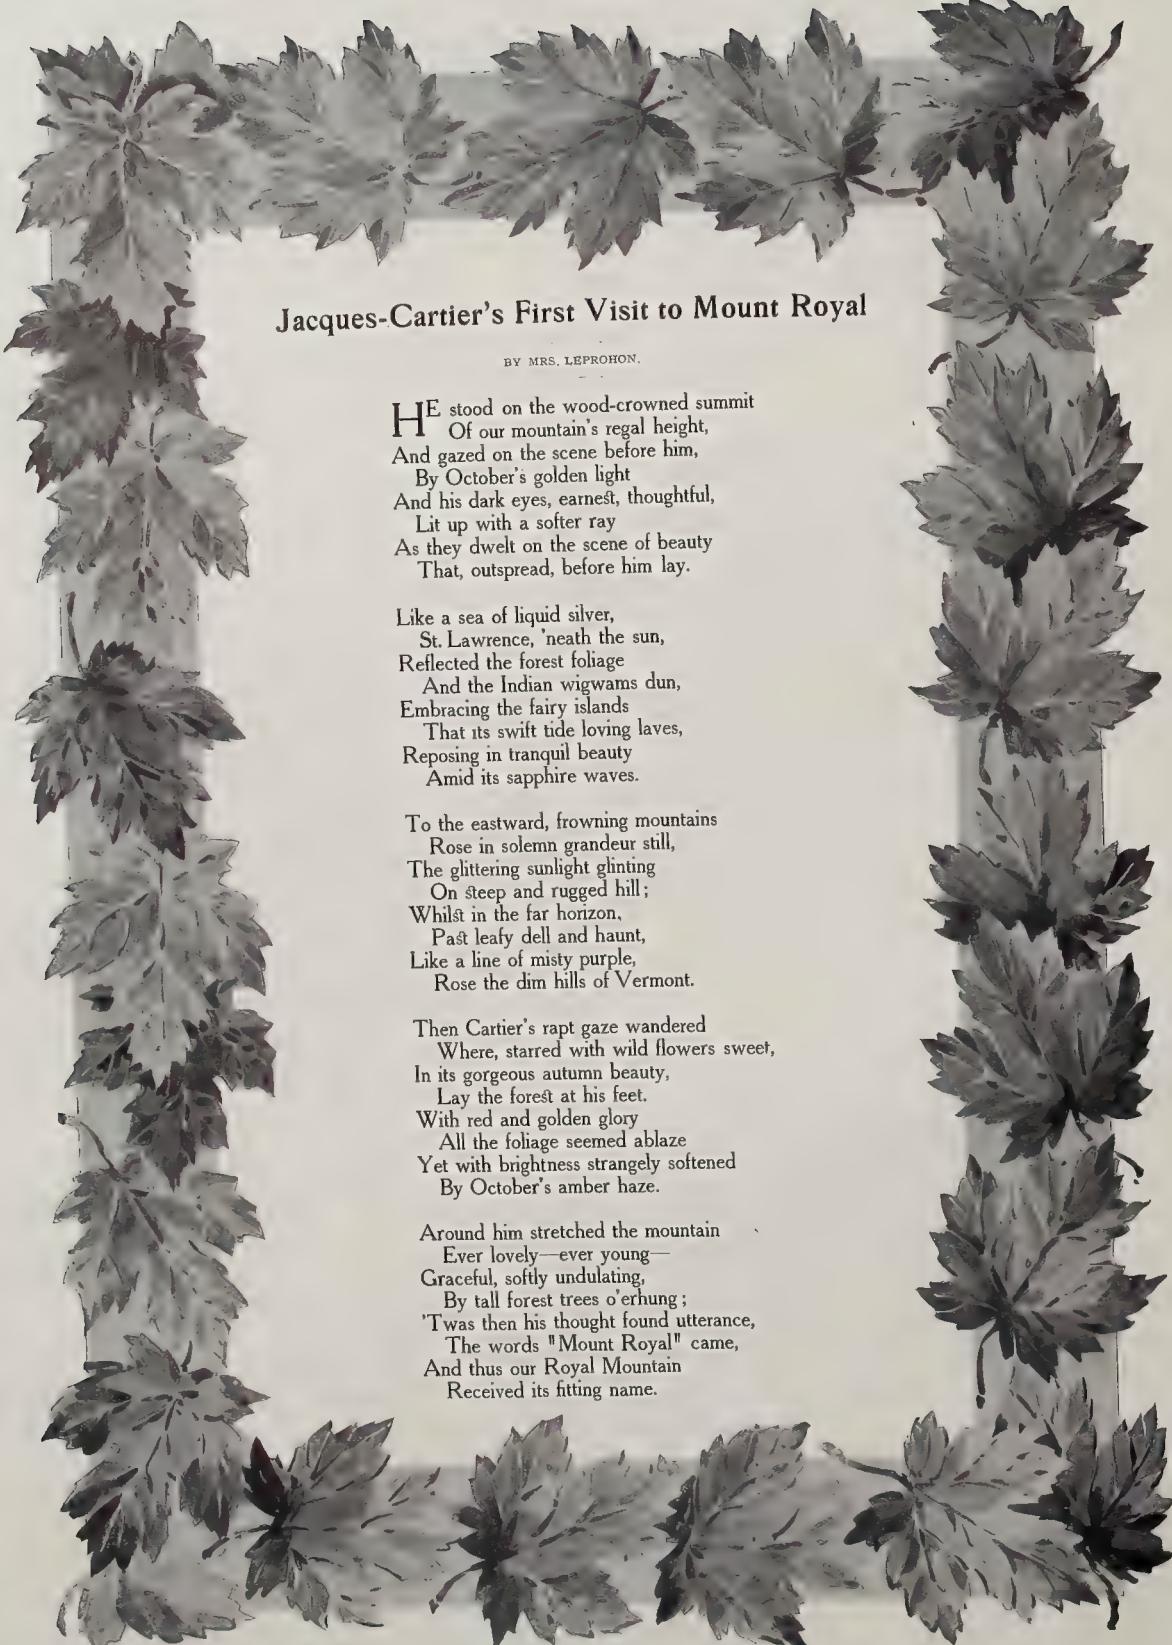

In proportion as Montreal thus expands, the city is being supplied with large hotels, fine restaurants, countless cafes, and places of amusement. The institutions of education in Montreal are now world-renowned — McGill, Laval, the Grand Seminary, and the innumerable colleges, convents, academies and schools have made the metropolis a centre of education equal to any on this continent and surpassed by none in the old world. In fine we can, without any vain boasting, claim that Montreal is to-day one of the leading cities of the century.

This is not exactly the place for cold statistics; but the record of Montreal's advance, from the days of de Maisonneuve down to the present, bristles with evidences of all that we have thus briefly unfolded. The advantages enjoyed by Montreal are natural and acquired. The situation is calculated better than any other on this continent for the growth of a great metropolis. It stands as a connecting link between the East and the West—between Asia and Europe. There is something powerful in the blending of two great races, each with its own traditions, history, language, and institutions. Like the chef d'œuvre of the Grecian artist that combined the perfection of every master in one supreme model, so does Montreal enjoy the advantages of the very best that socially, intellectually, morally, and physically belong to each of these two peoples. Then they are not at work in antagonism, but rather in emulation.

The glory of Montreal of the past is but the promise of the fruit to ripen in the future. She stands to-day firm in the enjoyment of those great truths and blessings which cost so much to those who founded the city and to those who followed them. All the noble tendencies of her origin have been developed. No city of her population in the present or in the past exceeds her in wealth, education, intelligence and prosperity. None approaches her in that which best proves her excellence—her charity. To enumerate the manifold channels in which that ever flowing charity pursues its daily course far exceeds our limits. It covers every form of human suffering, it embraces every nationality and creed, it knows no limitation. Her rapidly increasing wealth is surpassed by the rapidly accumulating monuments of her generosity. Hospitals, libraries, drinking fountains, art associations and parks relieve, enlighten and delight those on whom fortune has not smiled. Freely has she received and freely does she give, ever remembering that of all virtues, charity is the greatest. We all know and feel that we may build much hope for the future on the glories of the past and the greatness of the present.

This brief history may appropriately be closed with the words of the late Sir William Dawson, in an address delivered nearly half a century ago:

"While we view with pride the rapid progress made during the past few years, we remember that appearances point to a still greater advancement in the future. Montreal possesses advantages which no other Canadian city can boast of. In the situation at its confluence of our two greatest rivers, the St. Lawrence and Ottawa: opposite the great natural highway of the Hudson and Champlain valley: at the point where the St. Lawrence ceases to be navigable for ocean ships and where that great river, for the last time in its course to the sea, affords a gigantic water power: at the meeting point of the two races that divide Canada, and in the centre of a fertile plain nearly as large as all England; in these we recognize a guarantee for the future greatness of Montreal, not based on the frail tenure of human legislation, but in the unchanging decrees of the Eternal as stamped on the world He has made. We know from the study of these indications that were Canada to be again a wilderness and were a second Cartier to explore it, he might wander over all the great regions of Canada and the West and returning to our mountain ridge call it again Mount Royal, and say that to this point the wealth and trade of Canada must turn."

Jacques-Cartier's First Visit to Mount Royal

BY MRS. LEPHON.

HE stood on the wood-crowned summit
Of our mountain's regal height,
And gazed on the scene before him,
By October's golden light
And his dark eyes, earnest, thoughtful,
Lit up with a softer ray
As they dwelt on the scene of beauty
That, outspread, before him lay.

Like a sea of liquid silver,
St. Lawrence, 'neath the sun,
Reflected the forest foliage
And the Indian wigwams dun,
Embracing the fairy islands
That its swift tide loving laves,
Reposing in tranquil beauty
Amid its sapphire waves.

To the eastward, frowning mountains
Rose in solemn grandeur still,
The glittering sunlight glinting
On steep and rugged hill;
Whilst in the far horizon,
Past leafy dell and haunt,
Like a line of misty purple,
Rose the dim hills of Vermont.

Then Cartier's rapt gaze wandered
Where, starred with wild flowers sweet,
In its gorgeous autumn beauty,
Lay the forest at his feet.
With red and golden glory
All the foliage seemed ablaze
Yet with brightness strangely softened
By October's amber haze.

Around him stretched the mountain
Ever lovely—ever young—
Graceful, softly undulating,
By tall forest trees o'erhung;
'Twas then his thought found utterance,
The words "Mount Royal" came,
And thus our Royal Mountain
Received its fitting name.

JACQUES CARTIER'S FIRST LANDING.—The honour and the glory will ever remain associated with the name and memory of Jacques Cartier as being the first white man to set foot on the Island of Montreal. Inspired by the same Divine mission which enabled him to successfully reach Quebec, he determined to further explore the St. Lawrence and on the 2nd of October, 1535, he arrived off Hochelaga, as Montreal was then called. The Indian village was reported to have contained about a thousand people and the great navigator was received with evidence of cordiality and good will and was escorted by his Indian hosts to the top of the mountain, and so impressed was he by the grandeur and magnificence of the view that he named the heights Mount Royal, from which the city derived its name. Montreal!

MAISONNEUVE MONUMENT.—This splendid memorial was erected by a grateful people to the memory of the founder of their city. The City of Montreal was founded in 1642 by that illustrious son of France, Paul de Chomedy Sieur de Maisonneuve. The city which he has founded has grown from an Indian village to be one of the great commercial cities, one of the great Christian cities of the world from whose institutions of learning radiates an influence which permeates not only every nook and corner of this vast Dominion but extends far beyond its boundaries. Within the shadows of this monument and where he once stood and battled for his life and that of his followers, stand the homes of financial and commercial corporations whose daily transactions find their way into the ledgers of the world, and to-day in the streets of the city he founded, are spoken nearly all the languages and many of the dialects of the world.

CITY OF MONTREAL.—THE METROPOLIS OF BRITISH NORTH AMERICA. Population 400,000. Total assessed value of property $299,000,000. Area 9,825 acres including 35 public squares with an area of 615 acres, and 231 miles of streets. Custom receipts for 1908, $12,909,412.66. As it was in the beginning so it is now, the financial, industrial and commercial capital of the Dominion.

DOMINION SQUARE.—Showing the Windsor Hotel and the Macdonald Memorial, unveiled 1895, erected to the memory of the late Sir John A. Macdonald, Premier of Canada, one of the Fathers of Confederation.

MONTREAL HARBOUR, the seaport of the Empire's granary.—The River St. Lawrence is 1,500 miles in length and drains an area of 350,000 square miles. Montreal Harbour enjoys the singular distinction of being an ocean port although situated nearly 1,000 miles inland. It is 315 miles nearer Liverpool than New York City is. From Montreal to Chicago by the St. Lawrence system of rivers, canals and lakes is 158 miles less than from New York to Chicago. Montreal is not only the great importing and exporting point of the Dominion, but the natural seaport for a great area of the western part of the United States, and with our improvements and modern equipments the port of Montreal is yearly diverting the grain traffic from Buffalo and New York to this port. In 1908, there arrived 739 ocean vessels with a total tonnage of 1,958,604, and 12,434 inland vessels with a total tonnage of 3,589,424. Major George W. Stephens, Pres. Montreal Harbour Commissioners.

ST. JAMES CATHEDRAL.—Situated on Dominion Square was designed to exceed in size and magnificence all other churches on this continent. Built on the model and one-third the size of St. Peter's at Rome. The dome being an exact copy of that Basilica is 70 ft. in diameter at its base and the summit is 210 ft. from the floor of the church. The foundations were commenced in 1870, designed in the form of a cross 330 ft. long and 222 ft. wide. The exterior height to the top of the cross is 250 ft. Our view shows the unveiling of the monument to the memory of Archbishop Bourget, first Archbishop of the Diocese, with whom originated the construction of the Cathedral.

DOMINION SQUARE, Montreal.—Showing Canadian Pacific Railway Windsor Street Station and St. George's Church.

VIGER SQUARE.—The oldest and most interesting square in the city, the gift of Jacques Viger, the first Mayor of Montreal, and noted for its many old and stately elm trees and delightful walks.

MOUNT ROYAL PARK.—Showing driveway on summit. This park is one of the City's chief attractions, the view from whose "Look Out" is unrivalled.

THE SEMINARY OF ST. SULPICE, Place d'Armes Square.—Founded 1641. The home as shown above was erected in 1710. The Seminary is reputed to be one of the wealthiest religious institutions on the continent.

THE ROYAL VICTORIA HOSPITAL, at the base of Mount Royal.—Founded in 1887 by Lord Strathcona and Lord Mount Stephen, to commemorate the jubilee of the late Queen Victoria. In all its appointments this Hospital is considered the most up-to-date known, and is one of the handsomest structures in the city.

A DRIVE IN MOUNT ROYAL PARK, Showing the upper Reservoir.

THE ROYAL VICTORIA COLLEGE FOR WOMEN, Sherbrooke St. West.—Founded and endowed by Lord Strathcona and Mount Royal and affiliated with McGill University. Cost $300,000., endowment $1,000,000.

LAFONTAINE PARK.—One of the City's principal parks and notable for its natural attractions and artificial lakes, conservatories, etc.

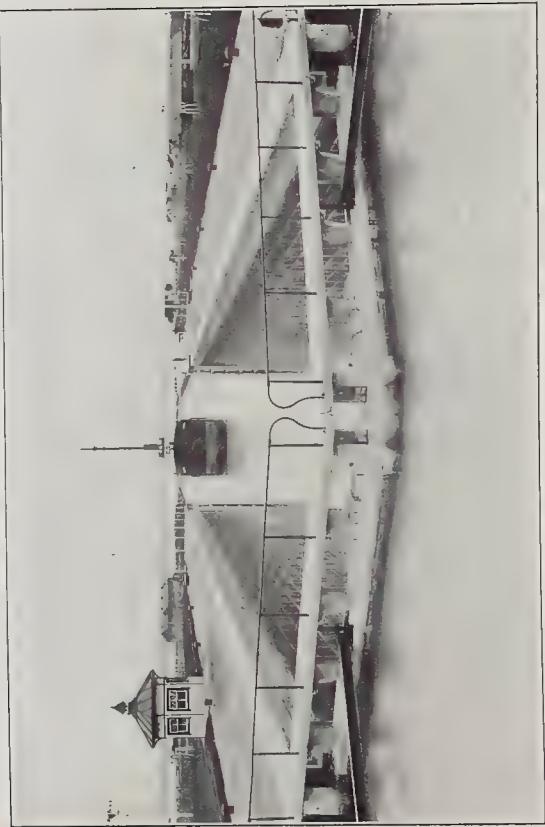

ST. LOUIS SQUARE.—The daintiest little square in the City, with a miniature lake and fountains and surrounded by grand old trees. In this square has been erected an artistic monument with bronze bust and figure to Cremazie, the French-Canadian poet.

CHATEAU DE RAMEZAY.—Amongst Montreal's most historical buildings is the Chateau de Ramezay associated with events of far-reaching influence in Canadian History. Built in 1705 by Claude de Ramezay then Governor of Montreal. Here in 1760, arrangements were made for the withdrawal of the last French garrison from Canada. In 1775, it was occupied by the American Brigadier-General Wooster. On withdrawal of the American troops, it was again used as the official residence of the English Governors. It is now converted into a museum where may be seen many interesting souvenirs associated with the early history of Canada.

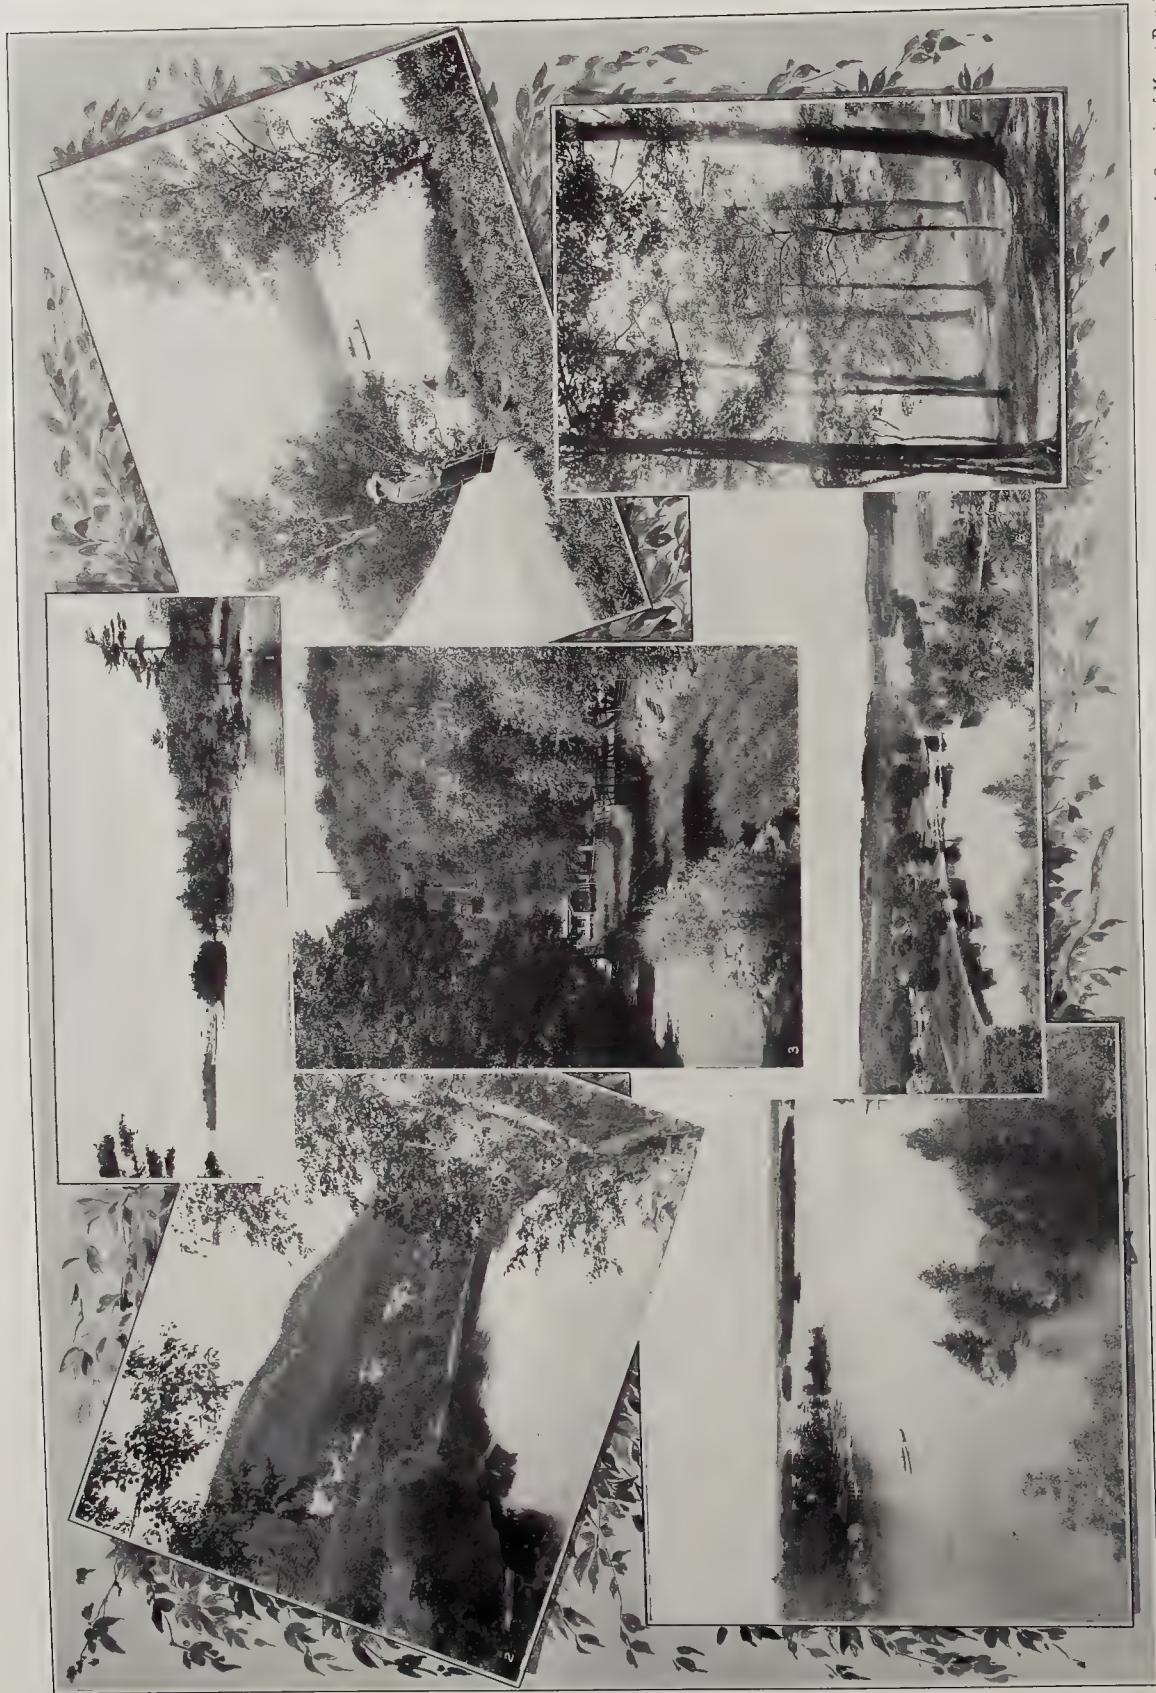

THE GENERAL OFFICES OF THE GRAND TRUNK RAILWAY SYSTEM OF CANADA, Montreal.—Charles M. Hays, 1st Vice-President and General Manager

BONAVENTURE STATION.—The chief terminal in Montreal of the Grand Trunk Railway system, the pioneer railway of Canada, with a mileage of 4,645 miles. The longest double-tracked railway in the world under one management which extends from Montreal to Chicago. It has thrown a net work of steel over every city and town of importance of Ontario and Quebec. It has united the Great Lakes with the Atlantic, tapping the enormous trade of Lakes Ontario, Erie, Huron and Michigan at a number of important points. The completion of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway will add an additional 5,000 miles to the system. Luxurious trains and lovely scenery.

CANADIAN EXPRESS BUILDING.—The new home of the Canadian Express Company and one of the handsomest and most modernly-constructed buildings in Canada. This Company are general forwarders to all parts of the world by fast passenger trains and mail steamships. This Company issues Money Orders for remitting money by mail which afford absolute security and if lost, stolen or destroyed, the amounts are refunded without delay. This Company also issues Traveller's Cheques with their foreign money value printed thereon and are payable in gold or its equivalent by more than 15,000 correspondents throughout the world thus constituting practically an international currency. MONTMORENCY FALLS, Quebec. The Montmorency Falls, over 270 feet high, well known for their grand and picturesque beauty, are located at Montmorency, seven miles from the City of Quebec on the electric line of the Quebec Railway Light & Power Co. To the tourist, it is one of the most beautiful Canadian attractions, its location and traditions are of the most historic and romantic in all Canada. Here resided, for some years, H. R. H. the Duke of Kent, father of the late Queen Victoria; here cluster the early traditions and romances of the first days of Canada. From here can be embraced in one glance the splendour of that panoramic view which takes in the City of Quebec and harbour, the Rivers St. Lawrence and St. Charles, the Island of Orleans and the Plains of Abraham, one of the most historic battle-fields in the world.

HERBERT MOLESWORTH PRICE RESIDENCE. "The Cottage," Montmorency Falls.—On the brink of the rushing waters of the Montmorency Falls and surrounded by lovely natural scenery, commanding a view which is famed in history as one of the most picturesque and most beautiful in Canada, and around which are to be seen nature's most pleasing environments, grounds, walks and gardens rich in a variety of flowers, shrubbery and fine old trees, stands the home of Herbert Molesworth Price. The collection of historical cannon shown in the grounds is described in "Quebec under Two Flags" by A. G. Doughty, C.M.G. The Cottage is rich in antiquities of many descriptions. The piers of the old suspension bridge still stand like sentinels near the Cottage.

Unique residence of Rodolphe Forget, M.P., at Ste Irenée on the St. Lawrence, built in the French Gothic style of architecture, the country seat of Rodolphe Forget, Financier, President Richelieu & Ontario Nav. Co., Vice-President Montreal Light, Heat & Power Co., and prominent in Stock Exchange circles.

STOCK EXCHANGE BUILDING, St. Francois Xavier St.—This handsome building, in the Corinthian style of architecture, erected at a cost of $300,000, is the home of the Montreal Stock Exchange. It was incorporated in 1874, and has now a membership of 55. Rodolphe Forget, M.P., President; R. C. Gillett, Secretary.

CREDIT FONCIER FRANCO-CANADIEN BUILDING, St. James St.—This new home of the Credit Foncier Franco-Canadien, constructed of Indiana Limestone in the French-Italian renaissance style of architecture, is one of the most notable buildings in the city. The Corporation was founded in 1881 with a Capital of $5,000,000, or 25,000,000 francs, since raised to $8,000,000; over $20,000,000 invested in Canada. Pres., J. H. Thors, Gen. Mgr., Banque de Paris, Pays Bas; Local Chairman, Hon. J. A. Ouimet; Gen. Mgr., M. Chevalier.

THE S. CARSLEY CO. LIMITED.—The S. Carsley Co. Limited, which occupies one of the largest department Stores in Canada on Notre Dame and St. James Sts., was founded by the late Mr. S. Carsley. In 1906 the Company purchased the property on St. Catherine, University and Victoria Sts. to meet the needs of their ever growing business. The illustration shows the Store as it will be when remodelled. The Store is renowned throughout Canada for the splendid assortment of all classes of goods, especially for the variety in Dress Goods, Silks, Linens, Carpets, etc. Foreign offices: London, 18 Bartholomew Close E.C.; Paris, 41 rue de l'Echiquier. President, W. F. Carsley; Vice-President, S. Carsley.

CHAS. DESJARDINS & CO. BUILDING, 130 St. Denis St.—Montreal is one of the great fur centres of the world, the fur emporium of America, and as a manufacturing and distributing centre of all kinds of furs, ranks first. No where is to be seen the magnificent display of rich and costly furs, such as are worn and can be seen every day on the great thoroughfares of Montreal during the winter months. The above is an illustration of the largest and best equipped retail Fur House in the world, that of Chas. Desjardins & Co., a house famed in every important centre in America. Mr. Chas. Desjardins personally attends the great fair sales held annually in Russia, London and Germany, and their stock of furs is drawn from every quarter of the globe, and represents the largest and most selected assortment of every variety, and embraces every article and garment of fur, both for comfort and adornment. Canadian Furs, which are renowned for their beauty and durability, are purchased from the trappers, and manufactured on the premises, and consequently prices are most reasonable. Their splendid three storey building which has just been erected, has a frontage of 90 feet and depth of 208 feet, the interior is finished in white, with wide balconies, broad stair cases and rich fittings, and is, undoubtedly one of the attractions of Montreal. A cordial invitation is extended to tourists to visit the premises.

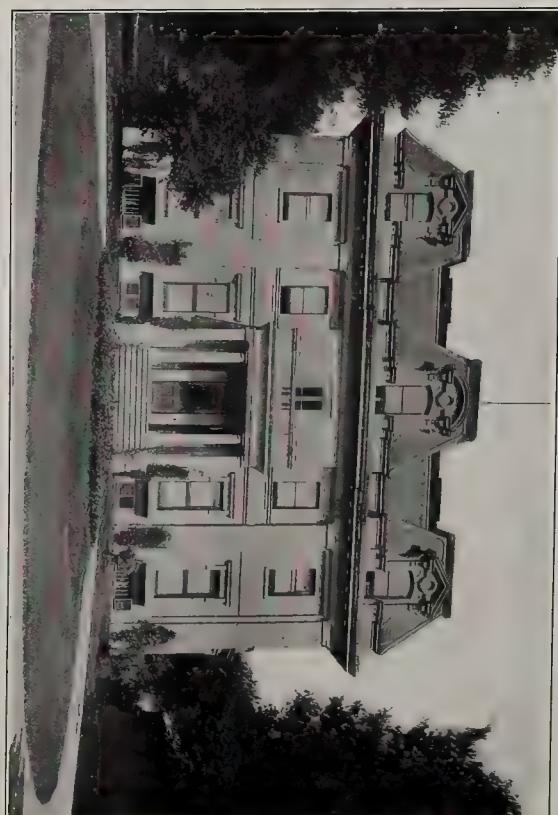

JAMES CRATHERN RESIDENCE.—Substantial modern residence of James Crathern, located on McGregor St., one of the select sections of the city. Mr. Crathern is Director of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, the St. Lawrence Sugar Refining Co., Dominion Coal Co., National Trust Co., Liverpool & London & Globe Insurance Co., President of Keewatin Flour Mills Co., and Royal Victoria Life Insurance Co.

ARTHUR J. HODGSON RESIDENCE, Murray Avenue.—Prominent among the handsome homes in Westmount, located on the south-western slope of Mount-Royal, is that of A. J. Hodgson, president of Hodgson Bros. & Rowson, Ltd., ex-president of the Board of Trade, and chairman of the Organization Committee of Arrangements for Fifth Congress of Chambers of Commerce of the Empire which met in Montreal in 1903.

ALLAN J. HART RESIDENCE, Argyll Ave. Located on the south-western slope of Mount Royal and commanding a splendid view of the city and the surrounding country, stands the home of Allan J. Hart, Managing-Director of the Hart Manufacturing Co.

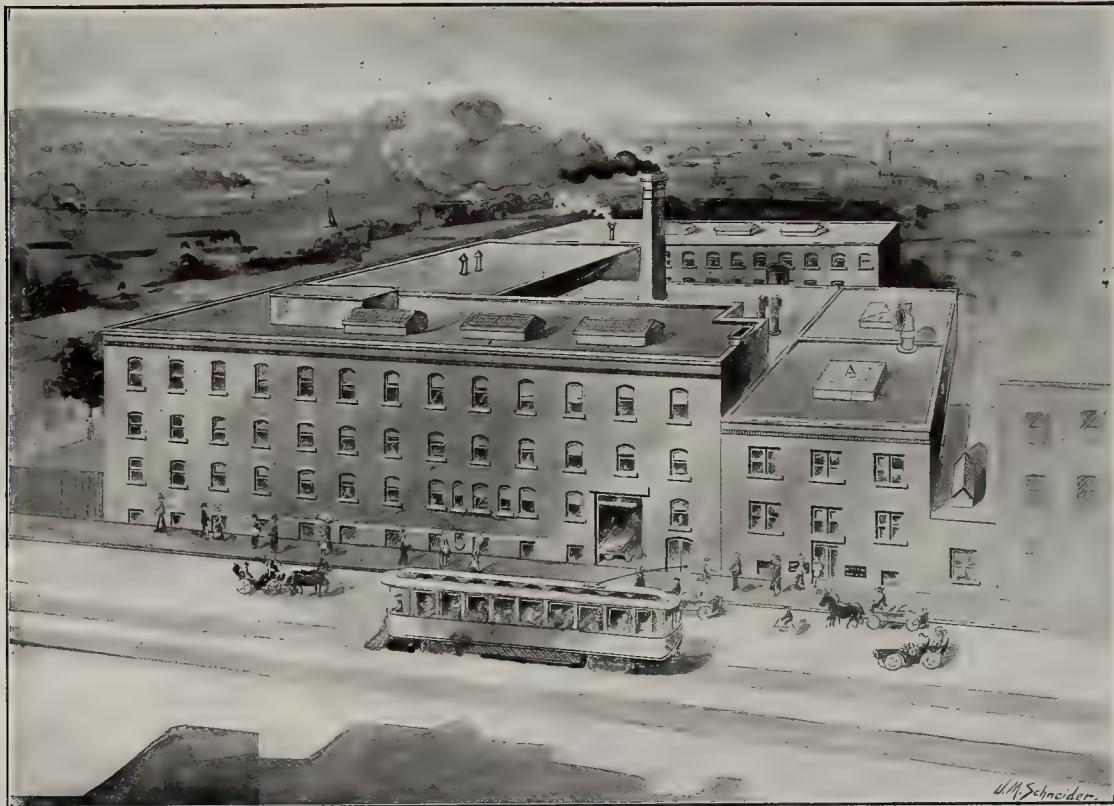

ROBERT REFORD RESIDENCE, Drummond St. — Among the many beautiful homes to be found in this splendid residential section of the city stands that of Robert Reford, Pres. The Robert Reford Co., Ltd., Dir. Bank of Toronto, Dir. Lake of the Woods Milling Co., and associated with many other concerns.

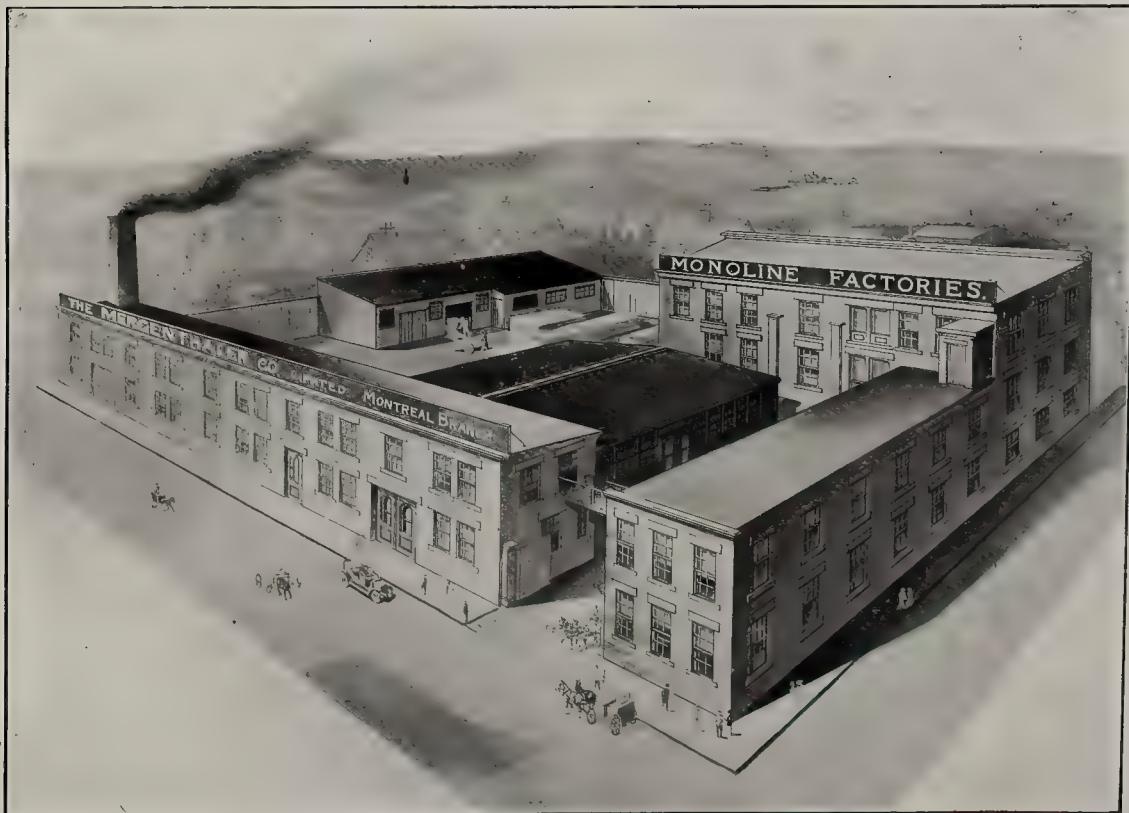

BUILDING OF THE IMPERIAL TOBACCO CO OF CANADA, LTD., 900 St. Antoine Street, Montreal.—This large building, built entirely of reinforced concrete, is the new home of the Imperial Tobacco Co. of Canada, Ltd., the largest tobacco and cigarette manufactory in Canada. Mortimer B. Davis, Chairman; O. S. Perrault, Secretary.

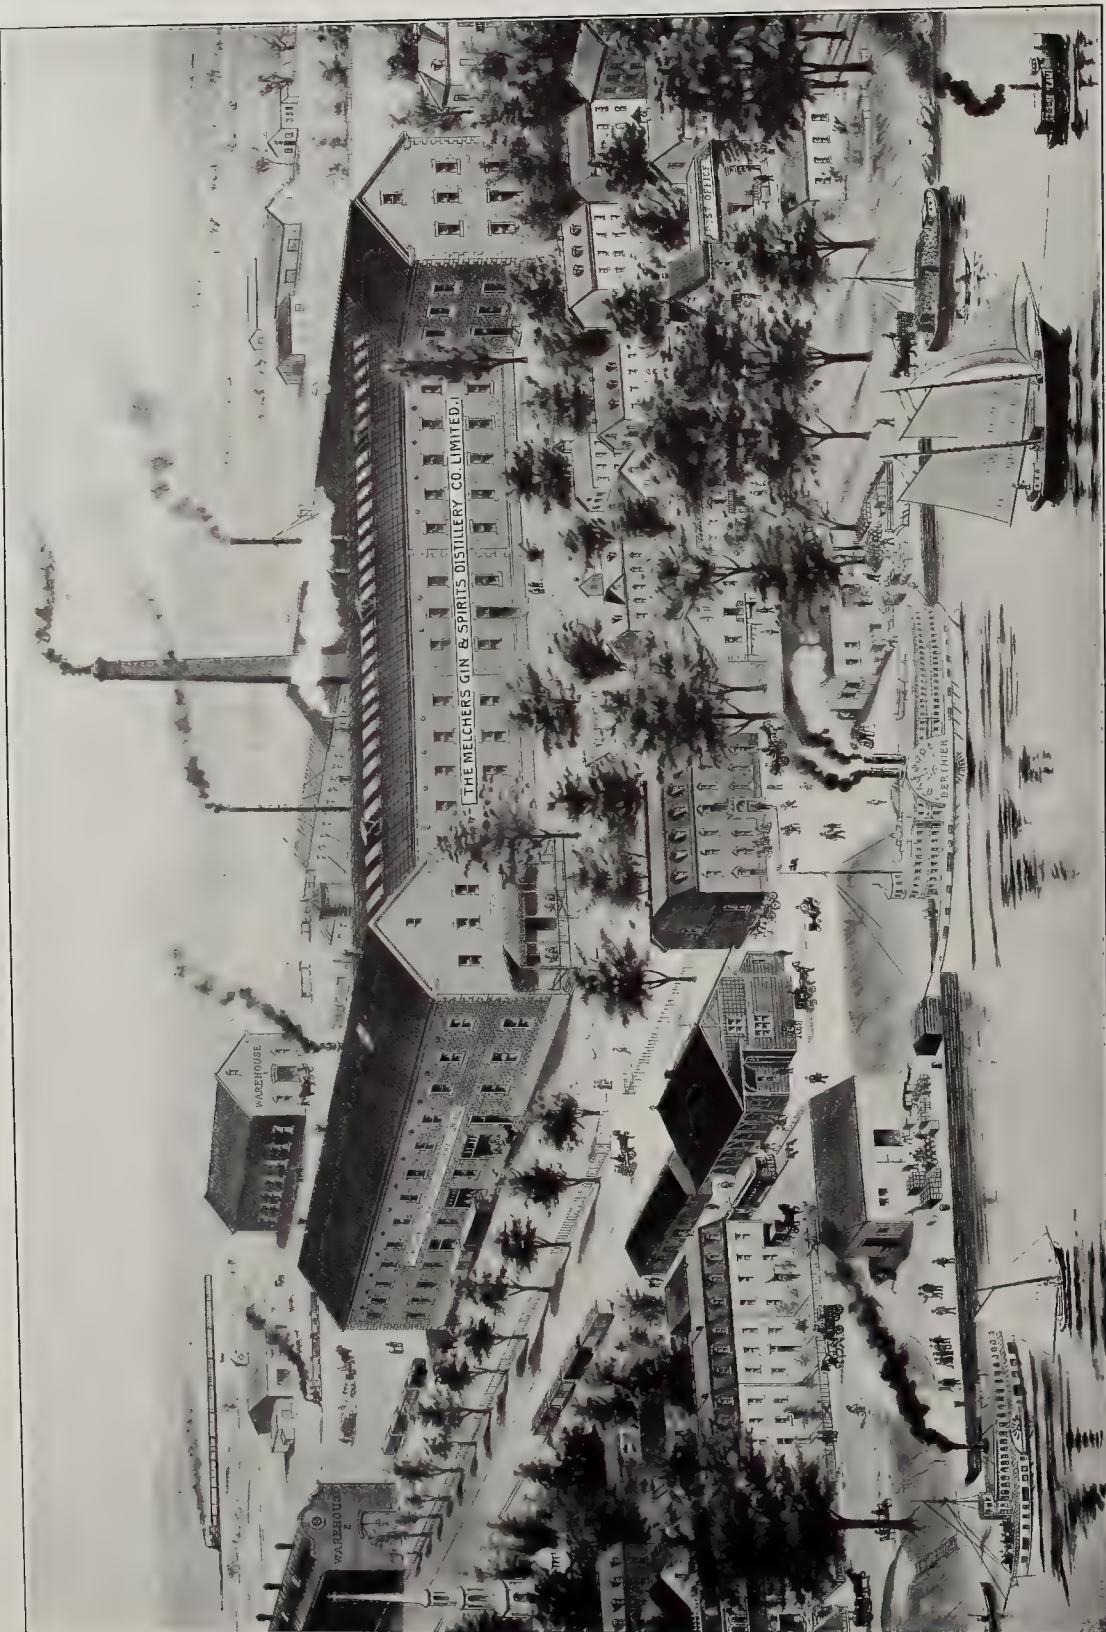

BUILDING OF THE STONEWALL JACKSON CIGAR FACTORY, Beaver Hall Hill & Lagacchettiere Street.—This modern structure in the heart of the City is the home of what has grown to be one of the most important cigar manufactories in the Dominion.

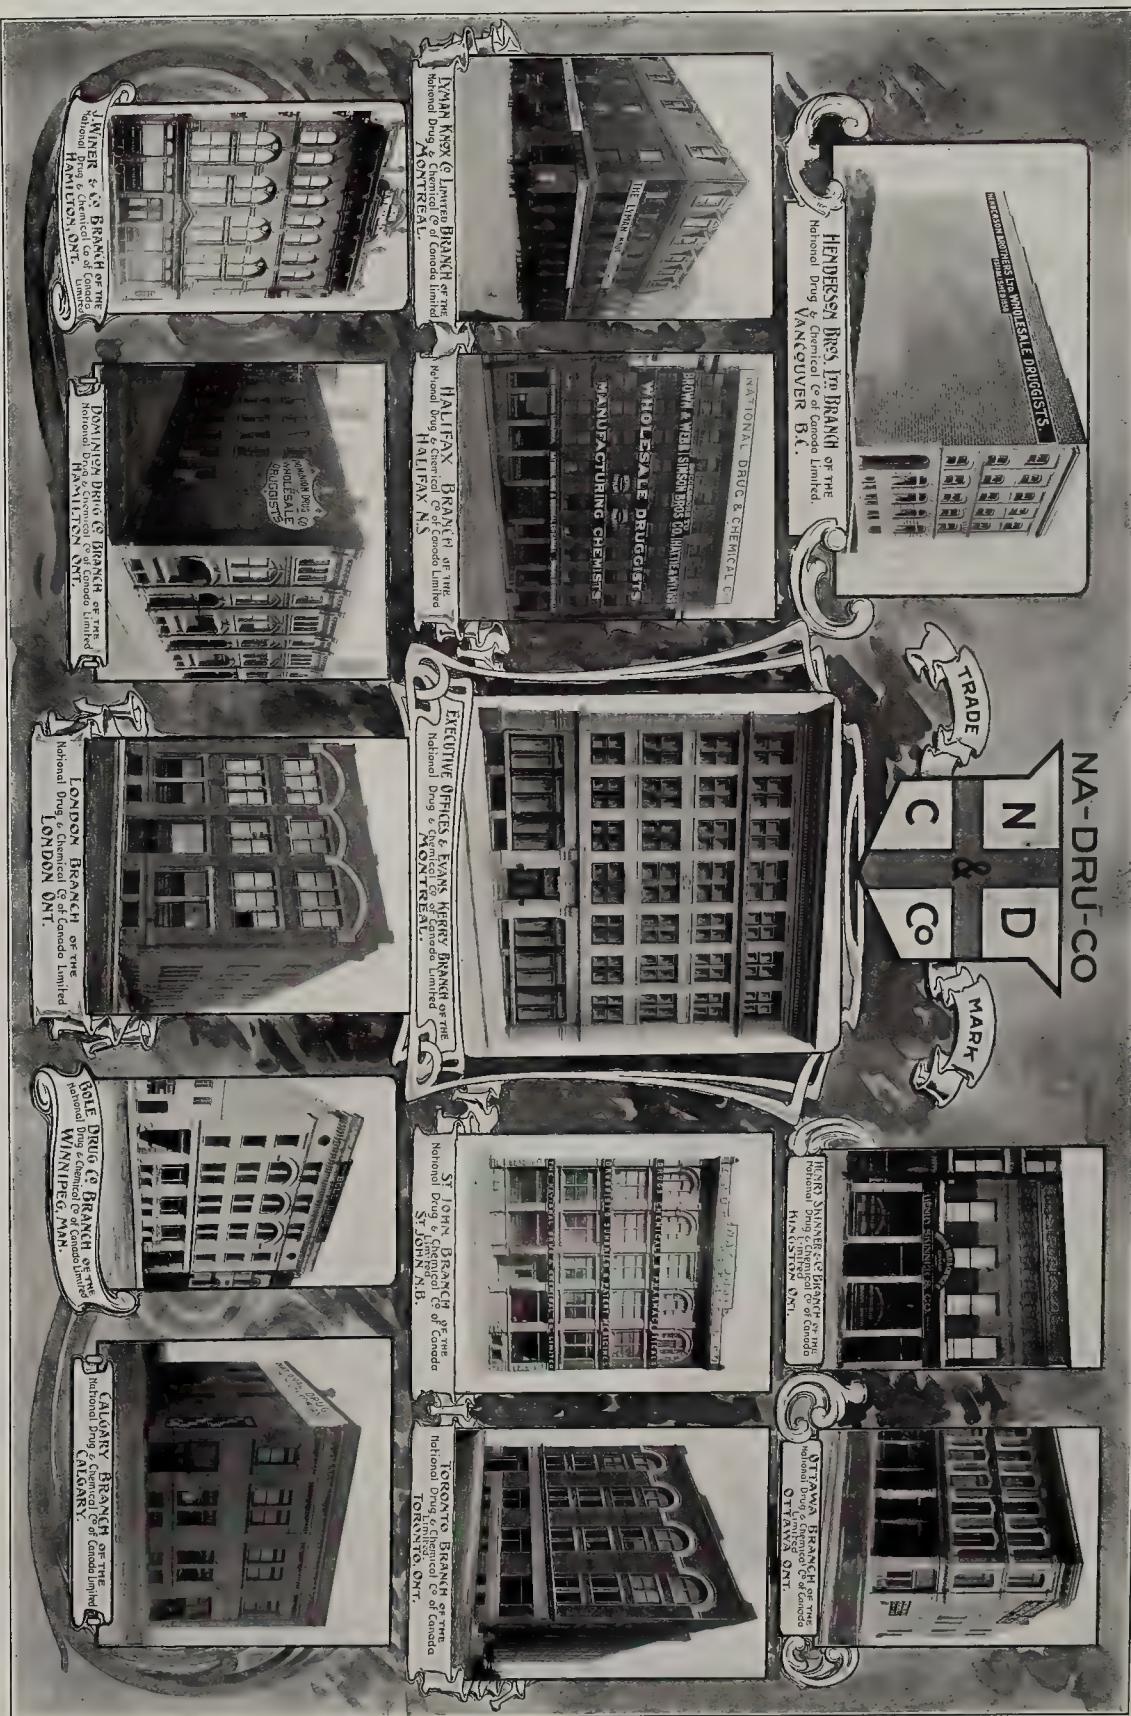

WM. CLARK, Canned & Prepared Meats, Pork & Beans, Soups, etc.—The manufacture of prepared foods in its various forms has become one of the great industries of the world and Canada's progress in this line of manufacture stands high and it is only just to say the reputation that Canada enjoys in this respect for the purity, the wholesomeness, the cleanliness and the nutritious quality of her prepared foods is in no small measure due to the high class of goods made by Wm. Clark the illustration of whose plant is here above shown.

THE MERGENTHALER CO. LTD. BUILDING.—Factory and General Offices of the Mergenthaler Co. Ltd, Beaudry St., one of the only two Monoline Factories in the world, shipping to South America, Cuba, Mexico, South Africa, Portugal, and Australasia.

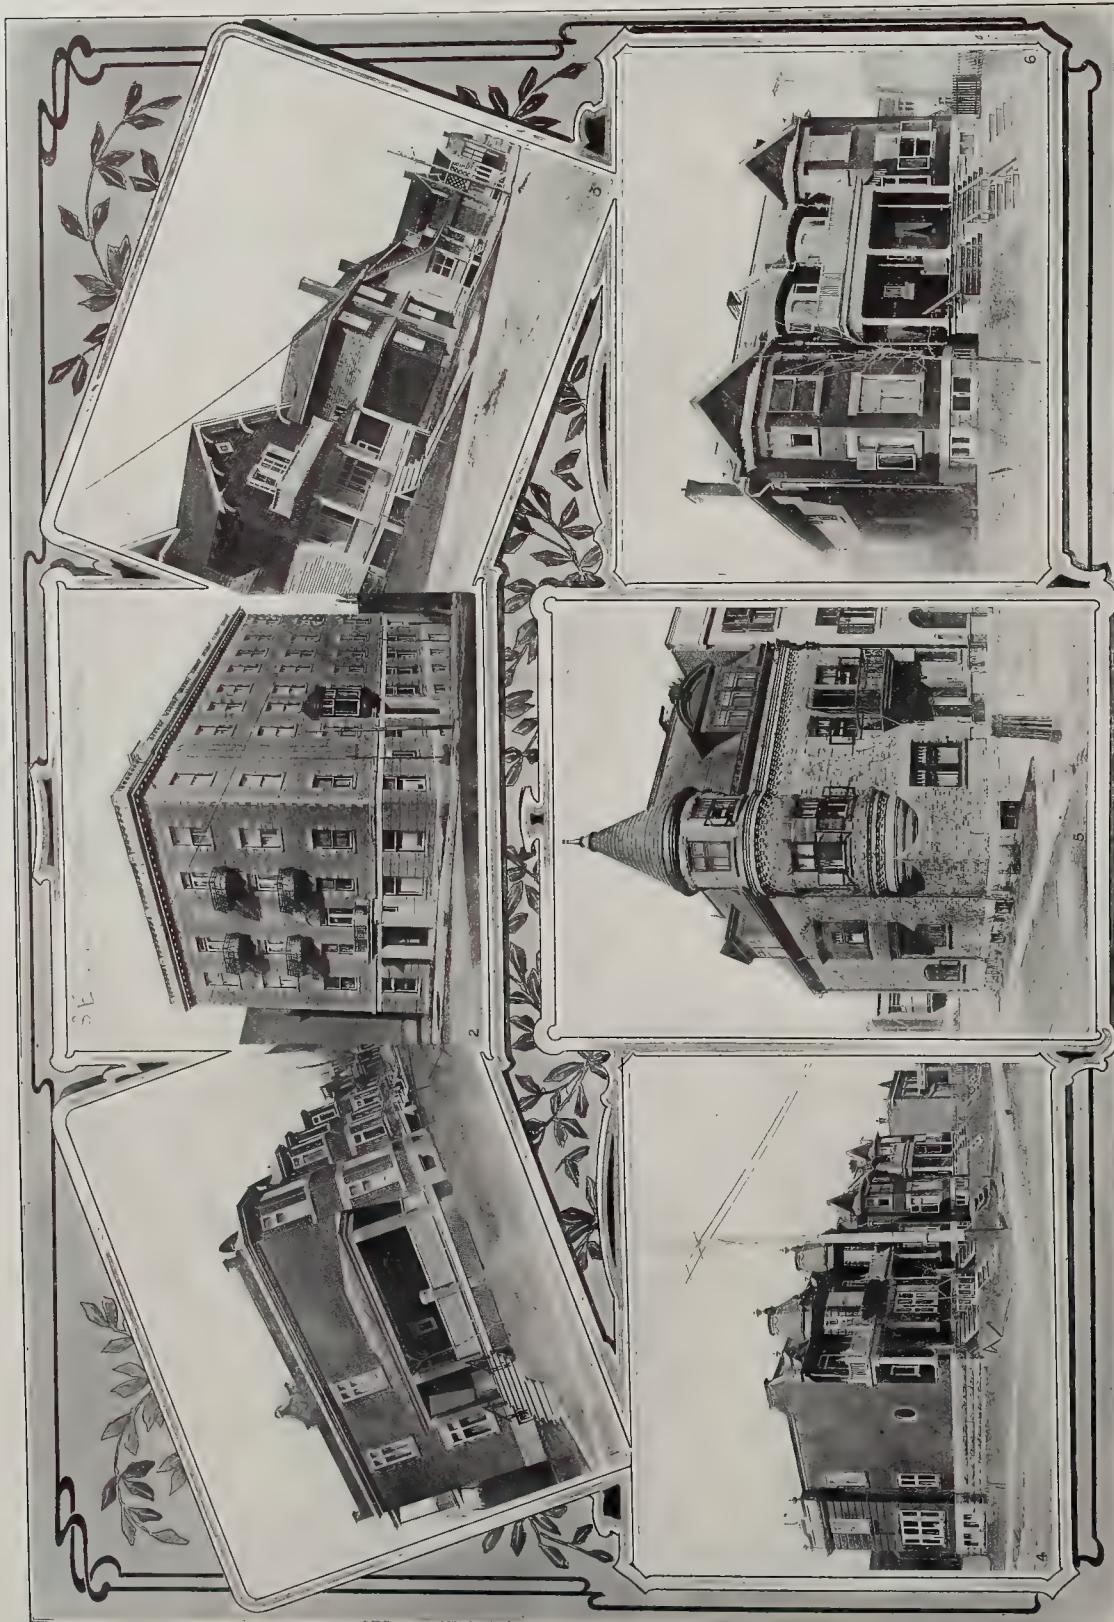

THE MELCHERS GIN & SPIRITS DISTILLERY COMPANY, Limited, Berthierville.—The success of this industry is one of the many striking incidents of the progress of the manufacturing interests of Canada and far exceeds the most sanguine expectations of its promoters. Owing to its superiority, the "RED CROSS" Canadian Gin is yearly replacing the importation of the foreign-made goods. The Canadian consumer is assured these goods are thoroughly matured in bonded warehouses and bottled under the supervision of officers of the Canadian Government.

WAREHOUSES OF NATIONAL DRUG & CHEMICAL COMPANY OF CANADA, LTD.—This Company was incorporated by Dominion Charter in 1905. Authorized Capital six million Dollars. HEAD OFFICE: MONTREAL. The Company represents a consolidation of nearly all the principal Wholesale Druggists in Canada, its branches being in all the principal distributing cities in Canada from the Atlantic to the Pacific Ocean, or over a stretch of forty-four hundred miles, and its staff of about seventy travellers enables it to serve every section of the Dominion. The result is that it has a distributing power not equalled by any other firm in Canada. In addition to being wholesale dealers the Company is also a large manufacturer of Fine Chemicals, Pharmaceuticals, Proprietary and Toilet Articles.

LARIVIERE INCORPORATED BUILDING.—Successors to Amiot, Lecours & Lariviere, Boulevard St. Lawrence. Established 1889 and incorporated 1902. This is one of the principal business firms of the City, dealing in Hardware and Plumbers and Builders Supplies. Fred. C. Larivière, President J. E. Charbonneau, Director and Secretary Treasurer.

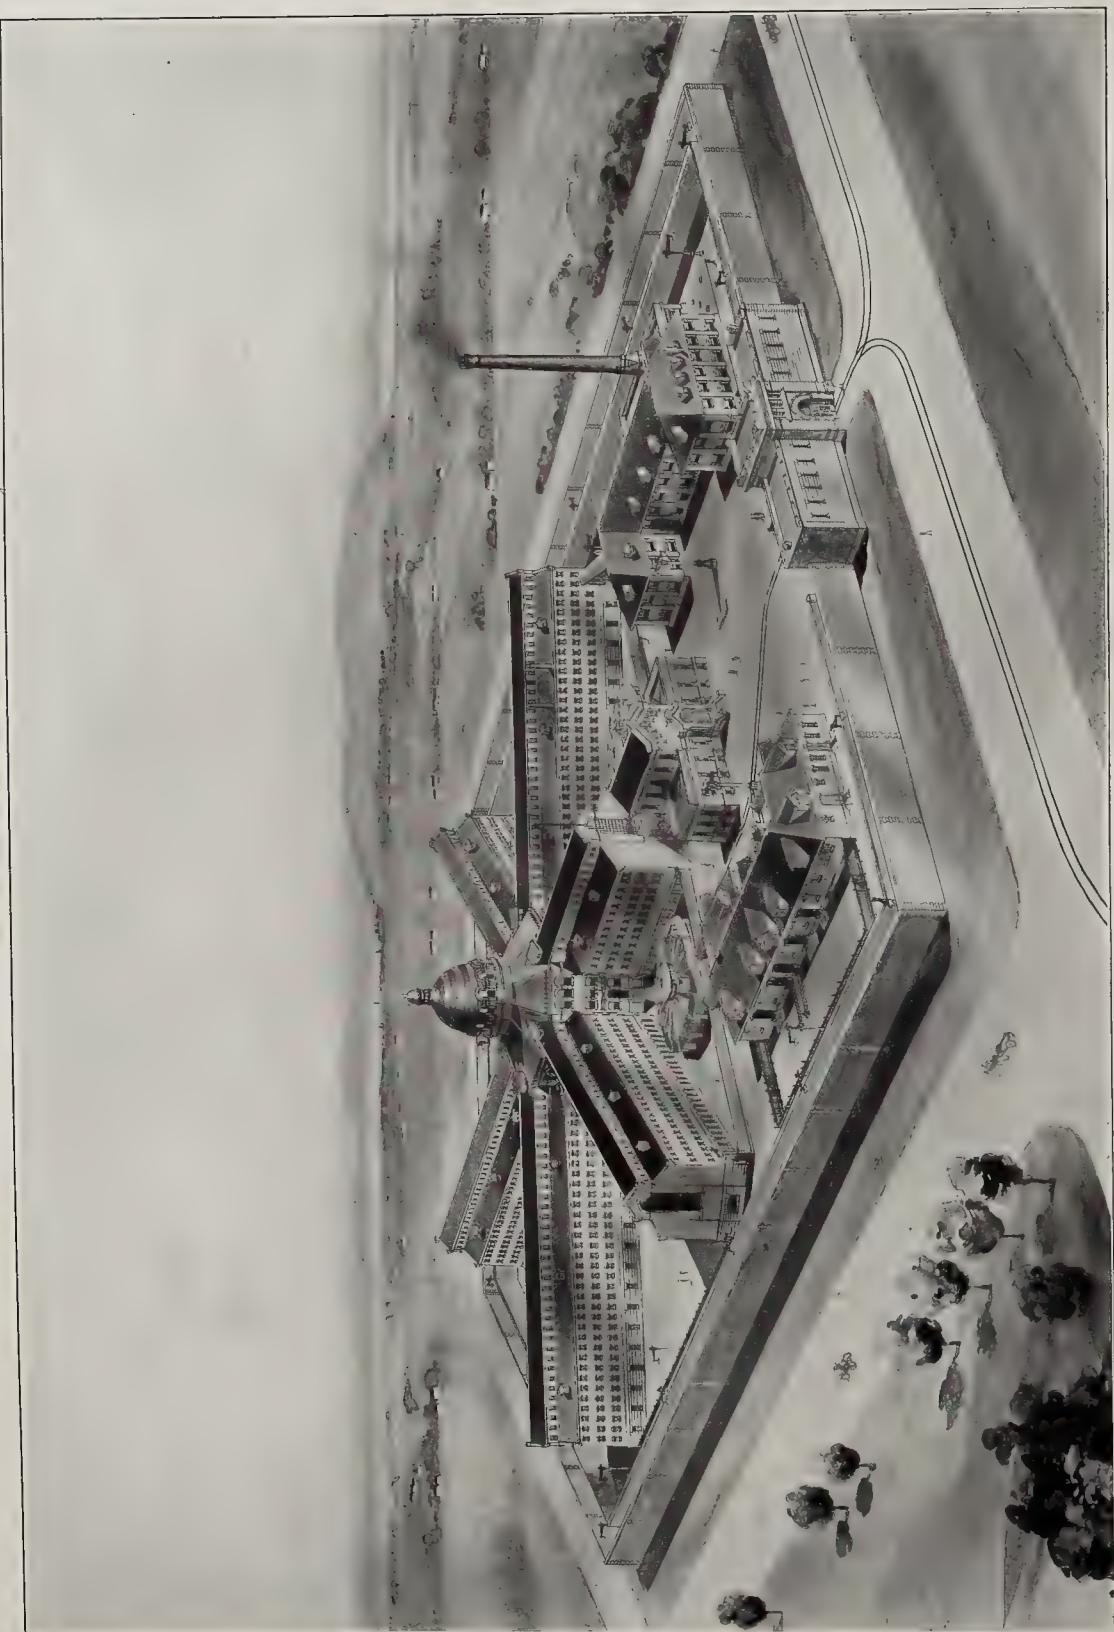

BUILDING OF THE UNION BREWERY, LTD., ONTARIO AND CADIUS STREETS—Established 1808. This is one of the oldest and most modern breweries on the Island of Montreal. Arthur J. Grubert, Mng. Director.

LAMONTAGNE LTD. BUILDING, Balmoral Block, Notre Dame St. West.—Manufacturers and exporters of Harness, Collars, Saddles, Trunks, Valises, Bags, Leather Goods, etc. Established 1869.

L. J. MARCHAND PLANT AND RESIDENCE, Ville Emard. — Located on the banks of Lachine Canal with every economical shipping facility for the handling of all kinds of lumber and timber, is the plant of L. J. Marchand, wholesale dealer in lumber, buyer of mill products, and manufacturer of sashes and doors. Construction of gasoline yachts is a specialty.

This illustration represents one of our local government buildings now under construction, and when completed will be one of the most modern and up-to-date of its character on the continent. The work is one of the largest and most important that have been undertaken in Montreal. The total cost is estimated at $2,500,000. J. B. Pauze & Co., general contractors; also contractors for extension and addition to La Banque Nationale. Haskell & Marchand, architects for both buildings.
